

Children's Bloodmobile

DONATE BLOOD FOR ALL THE LITTLE REASONS.

Children's Bloodmobile

What is the Children's Bloodmobile?

Recognizing the difficulty for donors to come to Children's National Medical Center to donate blood, we've made donating blood more convenient and easy by hitting the road with our new Bloodmobile. Our 40-foot vehicle will travel throughout the greater Washington, DC area to places of employment, schools, organizations, and places of worship for sponsored blood drives.

Who does Children's Bloodmobile Serve?

The Bloodmobile will help us meet our increased demand for blood to care for our special pediatric patients. Children's is growing and needs more blood than ever. Babies undergoing heart surgery need blood that is no more than five days old. Countless numbers of children involved in accidents need blood transfusions almost immediately. Some children with certain medical conditions, such as sickle cell anemia, need one to 10 units of blood per month.

Who can Donate Blood?

Anyone age 17 or older, who weighs a minimum of 110 pounds and is in good health can safely donate blood every two months.

Why is Donating Blood Important?

Ninety percent of people need a blood donation at some point in their lives. You, or your child, could be one of them.

How Can I Schedule A Bloodmobile Drive?

With minimal time and effort, your organization can make a tremendous impact in the lives of hundreds of sick and injured children by sponsoring a Bloodmobile drive. Our Bloodmobile is available every Tuesday and Thursday.
